

Too many mosquitoes and too little time to head down the track. Snapped these around the Information Centre 23-01-14.

This Bar-shouldered Dove did not mind my presence and kept pecking away at food.

The Willie Wagtail returned to this log after each foray for an insect.

A single Wandering Whistling-Duck was hanging out on McMartin's Dam.

The Possum Room Gang were spread out relaxing on a really hot day. Love the "lady-like" pose of the one on the right – her pouch is very clear. The "baby" is growing quite quickly.
